Neil O'Brien's Minstrels at the Davis Tomorrow.

The Davis theatre announces Neil O'Brien and his minstrel associates for tomorrow. Afternoon and evening, For many years Mr. O'Brien has been a conspicuous figure on the minstrel stage and has been prominent not only as a performer but a writer of songs and sketches as well. Now that Mr. O'Brien heads a big minstrel show all his own, a double welcome awaits him for the hundreds who have always enjoyed his clean and whole-The Davis theatre announces Neil ways enjoyed his clean and whole-some methods as a comedian. Those who have witnessed the O'Brien show in other cities and during his visit here last season are profuse in their praises of the organization which is considered by many the best minstrel entertainment presented in a decade Mr. O'Brien promises to retain the reputation he has made the past two seasons by presenting this year an ennew entertainment with all scenery costumes, acts, features, and with many new people in his or-ganization. ### COLONIAL THEATRE.

"Perils of Pauline," Two Real Feature Drama of Many Thrills.

Well, well, Pauline is here again looking for new experiences and thrills. Last episode seen at the Co-lonial showed her in her hair-raising experience when she was left in an uncontrollable aeroplane, thousands of feet in the air. Just how she managed to gain control of this soaring monster, fate alone knows, but as usual she lands in safety, unharmed, and smilingly ready for the new events that will give her the knowledge to make her a writer of successful books. Today she is in more trouble than ever, but we are sure she will over-come the difficulty somehow, and show us just how daring a little wisp of a girl can be when confronted with emergencies such as are seen in today's big spectacle. Other films for today are "The Fate's Cycle," Biograph, and "Wanted, A a mule. House," Vitagraph, all going to make one of the best shows of the season.

The Auditorium.

The Trey o'Hearts, the latest and best serial picture on the market to-day is being shown every Monday and Tuesday at this popular house and the first installment this week met with immediate popular favor. In addition to showing the picture each week, part of the story in printed form is also given out at the theatre enabling everyone who wishes to read the story as well as to see it pictured on the screen. Judging from reports this idea is going to be very successful and large crowds are expected at the Monday and Tuesday performances each week. The vaudeville the first half of the week is exceptionally good and consists of three first class turns. Doncourt and Clay are a classy pair of entertainers and have a very funny line of jokes, songs and stories. Harry La Vail, the perfect athletic, is showing his strength and muscle to good advantage by his heavy lifting, etc., while Lucille Filton, the mystery girl, is well billed and has everybody guessing throughout her entire act. The picture programme on Wednesday and ing throughout her entire act. The picture programme on Wednesday and Thursday will headed by a fine three reel Imp drama with William Shay and Leah Baird entitled When the World Was Silent. Ford Sterling, the inimitable comedian will be seen in Special of Pilitation. in Snookle's Flirtation.

THE SLASHED SKIRT. The day was fine, the skies were blue, I saw her in Fifth avenue, A picture in the dress review, With something sliken fiashing through ine slash in her skirt. Her manner and her clothes were glad. She looked quite like a fashion ad., And though she wore the hobble fad I'm sure she didn't know she had The slash in her skirt.

Ah! she was fair as fair could be, And tripped along unconsciously. Without the slightest thought of me Or anybody who might see The slash in her skirt.

Perhaps because she was so fair It made some other women there Turn half round to rudely stare And whisper: "My! how can she That slash in her skirt?"

How different were the men. To them Her radiant rags, from hat to hem, Were roses on a lovely stem, And never did a man condemn The slash in her skirt.

She tripped along unconsciously, Her artiess femininity So far from any coarseness free, It really was a joy to see The slash in her skirt,

So guileless was she, tripping through
The crowds along Fifth avenue,
I felt, somehow, it was her due
For me to call her notice to
The slash in her skirt—
But I didn't!
